INTRODUCTION.

HIE celebrated Hope Collection of Dutch and Flemish paintings has filled such an important place in the art world that a few lines on its history cannot fail to be of interest.

It was accumulated by several generations of that branch of the Scotch family of Hope, which settled at Amsterdam in the earlier half of the seventeenth century, the first head of the Dutch house being Henry Hope, brother to Sir Thomas Hope of Kerse; and the fact that the great majority of the works were acquired direct from the easels of the masters, attaches additional importance to the intrinsic excellence of the pictures.

In the eighteenth century the taste and energies of Thomas Hope, of Amsterdam, and of his sons Thomas and Henry Philip, who returned with their art treasures to this country in the time of the French Revolution, resulted in further important additions.

In England the pictures (together with the galleries of Italian paintings and antique statuary and vases) were for many years exhibited in the house of Thomas Hope in Duchess Street, Portland Place.

Upon his decease in 1831, and that of his brother, Henry Philip, in 1839, Henry Thomas Hope became the owner of this particular collection, which was bequeathed by him to his widow in 1862. Henrietta Adela, the daughter of this lady, became the wife of the sixth Duke of Newcastle, and through her Lord Francis Pelham Clinton-Hope, brother of the present Duke of Newcastle, inherited a life interest in these heirlooms on his grandmother's death in 1884.

On July 26th of this year, at the application of Lord Francis Pelham Clinton-Hope, with the consent of the trustees, to the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, Mr. Justice Romer sanctioned the sale of this historic collection of eighty-three pictures to Mr. Asher Wertheimer, of New Bond Street, London, at the price of £121,550.
